SLEEPY SOUTH

(Your Gateway to Marlboro Country)

Traveling to the southern municipalities of mainland Batanes gives you the more distinct Batanes flavor. Enjoy the winding road to the south and take lots of pictures as you pass through age old livable vernacular houses. The southern municipalities of Batanes are a show case of the evolution of Ivatan houses.

The south of Batanes boasts also of many scenic places with white unspoiled beaches stretching from one cove to the next. Its verdant hills grazed by herds of cow are a sight to behold. Old Ivatans with shy smiles are usual sight in the narrow alleys.

Like a true Ivatan, do not forget to say "kapijan ka pa nu dios" to elderly Ivatan when you chance to see one.

Picturesque Marlboro Country is commonly known to locals as "rakuj a payaman" or communal pasture. This rolling hills of greenery is host to Mahatao farmers herd of cow and buffalos and during Saturday's, they gather here to count livestock or catch one if needed.

A "FALLOWA" EXPERIENCE (Sabtang Island Tour)

Long before the coastguards of Batanes were deployed to safeguard the motorized bancas "fallowa" crossing the channel of Sabtang, the seafaring people of Sabtang crosses the channel by rowing a small "tataya", unmindful of the danger of the billowing waves of the channel.

Today, the captains of the "fallowa" are the siblings of the brave seafarer of Sabtang. They ply the channel twice a day, brave as their forefathers but cautious and compliant of safety measure implemented by Batanes Coast Guard.

Your Sabtang experience starts once you set foot on the fallowa. Remember, the tataya of which the "fallowa" was copied does not have an outrigger to support balance. Your "fallowa" will ride the tides to bring you safely to Mystical Sabtang!
